

KeyLlama 16MB USB Micro Quick-Start Guide

Check keyllama.com for the most up-to-date information

1

Installation

Connect the keylogger in between the keyboard and the USB port of the computer. The keylogger will automatically begin recording key-strokes.

Please Note: The USB Keyboard must be connected to the keylogger both to record or retrieve data.

2

Access Recorded Data

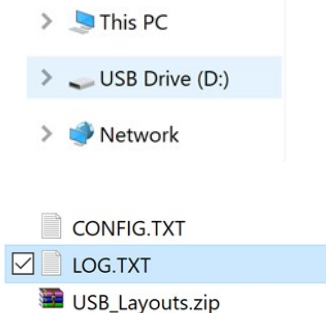

1. Open any word processor or text editor to a blank page
2. Hold down the three keys "kbs" at the same time.
3. The keylogger will mount itself as a flash drive. At this point, it is normal for the keyboard to stop working. In Windows, use "File Explorer" to open the "Removable Disk", then open the "LOG.TXT" file you find there. If you wish, you may save the log to your hard drive using your mouse. You may also delete the "LOG.TXT" file and a new blank one will be created. Note: Do not delete the other files without first understanding their function.

Always Safely Eject the device whenever it is in Flash Drive Mode. Failure to do so WILL result in corrupted files and require a reset (with loss of all data). If you aren't sure how to Safely Eject for your operating system, please Google it now before you proceed. After Safely Ejecting, disconnect the keylogger. When you reconnect, the device will again be in Record Mode.

Troubleshooting

Make sure that:

1. You're using a USB keyboard (not a PS2 keyboard with an adaptor) and it is plugged directly into the keylogger.
Please Note: The USB keyboard must be plugged into the keylogger for it to recognize the password. (If using a laptop, you must connect an external USB keyboard)
2. You're pressing all three keys at the same time (Note: this is different than some other KeyLlama keyloggers!)
3. Try disconnecting all other USB devices except the mouse and keyboard. USB printers are especially prone to interfering. If the keylogger works once the other devices are disconnected, try reconnecting them with the printer and the keylogger in opposite corners of the USB hub as shown:
